

Sessional Appointment in Germanic Studies
University of Victoria
Department of Germanic and Slavic Studies

The Department of Germanic and Slavic Studies at the University of Victoria invites expressions of interest from qualified instructors for sessional assignments from January 1, 2017 to April 30, 2017 within CUPE Local 4163 (Component 3) Sessional Lecturers certification. The course assignment will consist of GMST 102: Beginning German II, subject to funding and enrolment criteria. Successful applicants will have completed a Masters degree in Germanic Studies or related discipline by the time the course commences, be native or near native speakers of German language and will have proven teaching experience in the North American university system. Familiarity with textbooks that are in line with the Common European Reference Framework will be an asset.

The assignment selection criteria will include qualifications and ability of the candidate(s) based on relevant education and professional experience and proven teaching effectiveness in courses of this type. The appointment will be made at the rank of Sessional Lecturer and salary will be commensurate with the sessional salary scale. Qualified applicants should submit a letter of application and curriculum vitae, including the names and contact information of two references, to:
